YOUR BEST SOURCE FOR GEAR

From the Editor...

"This past hunting season while sitting in a ground blind out in West Texas Pecos area with the wind blowing about 20 miles an hour and the temperature dropping to 30°, I was thanking the good Lord that I had the right equipment otherwise it would have been pretty miserable. Equipment is the key and as I have learned over time, there really is a reason why some items are more expensive than others - they perform.

One of the new items on the list this year is the TurtleSkin Total Protection Snake Chaps. One of my hunting friends' son was bitten by a rattlesnake this past January. He was bit above the knee; yes, above his snake boots and through his brush pants. Fortunately, through the quick action of the ranch staff, life-flight and Sphone Hospital in Corpus, he has had a full recovery. So, if you are quail or dove hunting in rattlesnake country you might consider the best chaps on the market.

Here is to a great hunting season with lots of laughs with your families and best friends."
